Synopsis:
A subject had been stopped outside JCPenney for shoplifting by a loss prevention officer. The subject pushed away from the loss prevention officer, stating "I'm not going back to prison" and took off on foot, northbound across the parking lot. The loss prevention officer and a bystander gave chase. The subject pulled away as he ran behind Tires Plus. The subject then darted out onto Tyrone Boulevard, managing to miss several Southeast-bound vehicles. The subject crossed the median and ran into the northwest-bound lane, into the path of a 2005 Chrysler minivan, FL tag Q178VB, being driven by Delma Booth (W/F, 11/01/1930). Booth swerved to the right, minimizing the contact with the subject; however, the subject was struck by the left front fender and windshield, before being thrown to the pavement. Two stolen shirts were found tucked into the subject's pants as he was being treated by rescue personnel. The subject was transported to Bayfront Medical Center in life threatening condition. Booth and her passengers were showered with shattered glass, but their injuries were very minor.
