Arrest of Drew Allen Reed

Drew Allen Reed, a person of interest in the shooting death of Tyler Lord, was taken into custody. Reed surrendered to St. Petersburg Police detectives at his attorney’s office at 5pm, Tuesday. He refused to speak to us, but he did turn over the vehicle he says he was driving the night of the shooting. Reed is presently charged with being a felon in possession of a firearm.

Investigators have determined both parties were armed during the encounter that led to Lord’s death. Supervisors and detectives met with Tyler Lord’s family and briefed them in detail on the circumstances surrounding the shooting.

Investigators will not release any other information at this time.*

The case is now being referred to the State Attorney’s office to determine what, if any, additional charges could be filed in this case.
