Update: Woman Dies Trapped in Window

The woman who was found dead trapped in a window at the rear dwelling at 2141 15th Avenue South has been identified as Niesha Nicole Annie Henderson, B/F, 2/20/1993. It has been learned that Henderson was currently homeless and had previously stayed at this address a couple of times in the recent past. She was believed to be asthmatic.

The investigation revealed that Henderson had come to that address earlier with her 9 month old son. She apparently left her son in the stroller and utilized a plastic lawn chair and a milk crate to stand upon to attempt to get into/through the window that was five feet above ground level. The chair fell over as Henderson got her head and arms through the window and she subsequently became wedged on the window sill. It is unclear how long Henderson may have been stuck in the window before she died.

 PREVIOUSLY RELEASED ***

Woman Dies Trapped in Window

At 8:30 a.m., St. Petersburg Police officers were called to 2141 15th Avenue South about a baby left abandoned in a stroller. When officers arrived, they discovered a woman trapped in a side window of the rear dwelling.

Preliminary information is that the woman appeared to be trying to get into the rear dwelling via a window and became stuck. Her body became wedged on the window sill and she was found dead in that position. She did not live at that home but had previously stayed there.

We will release more details as they become available.

St. Petersburg Police Department report # 2016-027415.