Cold Case Skype Interview

The sister of St. Petersburg Police cold case homicide victim Paula Witthaus was unable to attend this morning’s Crime Stoppers press conference on cold cases at the Pinellas Sheriff’s Office. Here is a link, and transcribed excerpts of a recently recorded Skype interview with her.

Also, please note the billboard for Paula Witthaus is one of the 1st scheduled to go up at 28th St. and 47th Ave. N.

00:03:00 the people that are listening understand that there's a murderer walking around free able to have Xmas dinners celebrate their birthdays, able to go out and kill again. Is this really what you want in St. Petersburg? Because I would not want it in my neighborhood. I would do everything I can to help stop this person or persons27 So please I'm begging you.. Paula was legally blind James Rapp that she was taking care of was a Vietnam vet disabled 24 -7 oxygen. :41 why would anybody any human being kill two disabled people? What purpose did that serve? :48 and if it didn't serve any purpose you better be careful out there because they’re still running around loose. So please think about coming forward.58

00:01:04 I want to know why. Why did you feel you had to get rid of 2 disabled people? You will be found. They will find you eventually and hope justice will be served to the utmost part of the law they can give you:00:01:20
When you talk about closure a lot of times when people die, you get to hold their hand and tell them a last time you love them. You get to see them for the last time. Because of how the bodies were we did not see Paula. We didn’t get that closure to say goodbye to her we need that closure. We really need to know justice has been served and the person who did this to her will pay.

She loved life she loved people she loved trying to help people even when she was younger. And when she got older she had a lot of tough times in her life. She was homeless a couple of times that I wasn’t aware of or my mom and so she had a heart for people like she was who didn’t have a lot of money and she wanted to help them out.

The year she died it would have been her 50th birthday and I didn’t get to wish her a happy birthday, help them surprise her... Christmases, every 28th of the month it’s real hard for me when I see the number 28 any month it just reminds me that she died on that day and I call once a month to ask where they’re at with things.. If there’s anything I can do...
